ESSAY [11 MARKS]

Save water

There are two most important things to survive on this planet; one is air, and another is water. No one can think of a life without water. Water is the need of every living organism in this world. It is a precious resource gifted to us by the nature.

Water is also an important part of cleansing our bodies. It helps us get rid of toxins from our bodies by making us sweat and urinate. Water keeps our bodies hydrated and helps our immune systems work better. Apart from living, water is used for bathing, cleaning, washing, agriculture, and almost everywhere.

As the number of people grows, the need for water increased drastically. However, this also led to an increase in water pollution. This left only a few amounts of water usage. Hence, the need to save water became an important social concern. Saving every single drop of water is equal to saving a life. To save water, spreading awareness is a great idea. You can talk to your friends, family, or neighbors about how important water is, how polluted it is, and how important it is to save water. By adopting the right steps, we can save water in our daily life. Rainwater can be saved by building small or large ponds. Reusing water will provide great help.

Some scientists say that the amount and quality of water are getting worse every day. Therefore, we should take care of one of the most valuable gifts of Mother Earth and try to save water as much as possible.
